DESIGNER FOCUS

Family rooms

New York-based designer David Scott owes his booming career in interiors to the women in his life: “My grandmother took pride in her fine furniture and objects. My aunt Karen allowed me, very early on, to use her house as a laboratory for my emerging decorating talents.” After college, Scott went about honing those talents first by working in a luxury hotel in New York, where he “learned about pampering clients and making sure they received whatever they wanted,” followed by a degree at the New York School of Interior Design – he formed his company, David Scott Interiors, while still a student. With his design schemes, Scott strives “to create an elegant bond of the past and present,” whether he is working on an uptown family residence in an Art Deco building, a Chelsea loft, or – his latest project – his own Sag Harbor home. www.davidscottinteriors.com
