With an entire terrace built out of the consistent Valders limestone of the house, there is a delightful visual flow of spaces connected by the continuous flooring in the unified material. The cantilevered primary bedroom suite provides a completely column-less outdoor covered living room that extends directly to the amazing infinity edge pool and spa.

An adjacent building serves as the fitness centre, connected to the main house underground. Soft landscape done by Edwina von Gal accentuates the modern architectural structure of the space making this pool ambience impeccably desirable.
